* And now for a bit of history. The name “Jesus” is related to the Hebrew form Joshua , Yehoshua – (יְהוֹשֻׁעַ). This early Biblical Hebrew name underwent a shortening into the later name of Yeshua (ישוע). The Septuagint transliterated Yeshua from Hebrew into Koine Greek in the third century B.C., the result being Iēsous (Ἰησοῦς). From Greek, the name was translated into Latin. Latin has an irregular declension, with a vocative of Jesu, accusative of Jesum, and nominative of Jesus. The modern English name Jesus evolved from the Early Middle English Anglo-Saxon name Iesu. In the process of translation by means of transliteration we have lost the meaning of His Name and tend to view it as a somewhat unusual “religious” first name with “Christ” being His last name instead of a clear description of Him as the anointed one or Messiah.
